General Information

You will be taught a routine as a vehicle for learning the technique. On the day of the exam you will be marked on how well you do the moves you dance. You will not be marked on whether you remember the routine correctly.

At Bronze level if you do the moves technically correctly and on time you will pass. If you dance with more style and technique you will get a higher grade. – Generally aimed at Higher beginners/ Lower improvers, depending upon variations in standards.

At Silver level you are expected to dance a more technically demanding routine on time and with good technique. The Examiner will also be looking for more styling, body movement and confidence. Generally aimed at Higher improvers, depending upon variations in standards.

At Gold level the core technique, rhythm and timing is taken as read. The routine will be very technical and demanding both for leader and follower. You should be comfortable with spinning, singles and doubles, Xbody leads with inside & outside turns, Copas with turns, syncopated timing, Advanced body movement, styling technique, Excellent leading/following technique. - Generally aimed at middle intermediates depending upon variations in standards.

Rueda

The Rueda course is different from the individual medals because it is judged as a team medal although each member will get a certificate and a medal.
